Sunday, February 7, 2-4pm "Discovering Ontario's Past"

Susan Jamieson, Professor, Anthropology, Trent University When did people first settle in the Middle Trent Valley? Would you believe at least 10,000 years ago? Trent University Professor Susan Jamieson will talk about her archaeological discoveries at Stoney Lake and how they help to paint a larger picture about Ontario's past.

Sunday, March 7, 2-4 pm

"The Third Reich, Germans and Hitler: How One Man Became so Popular, Powerful and Dangerous"

Carolyn Kay, Professor, History, Trent University

Dr. Kay will address the reasons why so many Germans supported Hitler and saw him as the greatest German leader of the modern era. For historians, understanding why Hitler was such a charismatic leader is crucial to knowing why and how the Third Reich existed for as long as it did, and how Hitler was able to wage war against the world.

Viewer Discretion Note: Images of Nazi propaganda will be presented during the talk.

Sunday, April 18, 2-4pm

"Crisis and Renewal: The First Earth Day and the Visual Politics of American Environmentalism

Finis Dunaway, Associate Professor, History, Trent University April 22 will mark the 40th anniversary of the first Earth Day, an event often described as the largest protest in U.S. history. This lecture will look at a wide range of visual images - including photographs in popular magazines, political posters, editorial cartoons, advertisements, and television news - to consider how Americans imagined, understood, and argued over the meanings of the environmental crisis during a pivotal moment in the history of modern environmentalism.

Sunday, April 25, 2-4pm

"It's Just Good Times: The Canadian Middle Class at the Cottage"

Julia Harrison, Director, Frost Centre for Canadian Studies and Indigenous Studies, Trent University

Dr. Harrison teaches and conducts research on the nature of the tourist interaction and experience; and most recently on Ontario cottage culture. Her book, "Being a Tourist" was published in 2003.
