Background

The Peterborough Police Service offers a Homeguard Inspection Program. The program is a community-based crime prevention initiative of the Auxiliary Officers. Auxiliary Officers serve the community in a volunteer capacity.

Homeguard is meant to help residents improve home security and prevent break-ins and thefts to their home. Members of the Auxiliary Unit attend and conduct a home security audit. They inspect windows, doors and the exterior of the home. A written report is provided to the home owner detailing potential improvements, for maximum safety.
